Santo Domingo (April 2025) – RefriAméricas 2025, the leading HVAC/R (Heating, Ventilation, Air Conditioning, and Refrigeration) event in Latin America, will take place in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, on July 23–24. The event is expected to attract more than 2,000 professionals and generate significant economic benefits for the city, particularly in business tourism, hospitality, and commerce.

Over two days, the trade show and academic program will provide access to the latest technological innovations and create new business opportunities between local and international companies.

“RefriAméricas 2025 will be an invaluable opportunity to strengthen the HVAC/R industry across Latin America, while also contributing to the economic growth of the Dominican Republic by attracting key investments, companies, and professionals from the sector,” said Fabio Giraldo, Project Manager of the event. “This event will not only position Santo Domingo as a hub of innovation and technology but also highlight its logistical capabilities and infrastructure.”

With more than 100 exhibitors and a high-level educational program, RefriAméricas 2025 is an unmissable opportunity to stay at the forefront of the industry. Additionally, international media coverage will elevate Santo Domingo's profile as a competitive and attractive destination for future industrial and technology events.
